

HUSH HOUSE

On a dark and stormy night, five college students decided to explore an abandoned house. One by one they entered the house, but they quickly found out that the house was abandoned for a reason...

Now it is up to them to rid the house of the demonic spirits that haunt the very walls they are now trapped within.

Objective

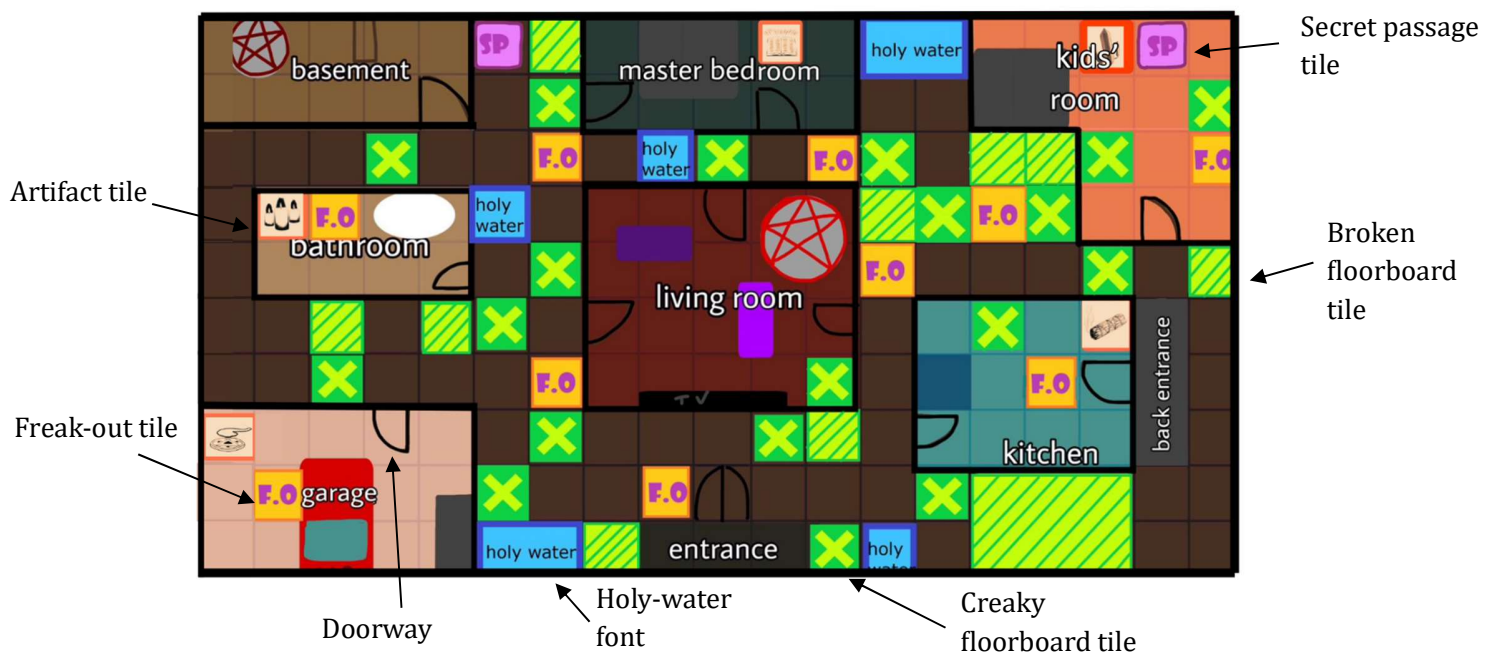

Successfully collect all 5 artifacts as a team and bring them to the summoning circle in the living room.

The team loses the game if they have 3 or more players possessed at the same time.

Components

- 1 game board
- 5 player pieces
- A D4, D6, D10, and D20
- 5 character cards
- 5 artifact pieces
- 13 holy-water bottles
- Spinner wheel (double-sided)

Board

Setup

Place the artifacts on their specific artifact tiles (indicated by a photo of the artifact), and the holy-water bottles in a pile near the board.

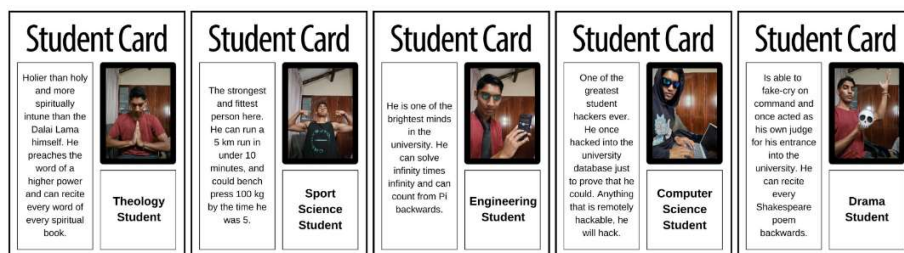

Players with the Engineering and Sports Science cards start at the "Back Entrance" and the rest start at the "Entrance".

Gameplay

- Character cards

Once setup is completed, players will take turns clockwise rolling a D6. The player with the highest number gets to choose their character (student) card: Engineering student, Drama student, Sports Science student, Theology student, or Computer Science student.

Once the first player has chosen, the rest of the players will choose in a clockwise direction. These character cards indicate the players' starting point, their special character buff, the artefact they need to collect, and their noise bar.

- Movement

Players take turns to roll the D10, moving in a clockwise direction.

Every player has a base number of 3 moves. At the start of each turn, whoever's turn it is will roll the D10 to determine how many moves to add to this base of 3. (The Sport Science character is the only one with a speed buff, mentioned on the character card: an additional 2 moves, on top of the base of 3, and whatever is rolled on the D10.)

Players then strategically move both horizontally and vertically around the board.

NOTE: players may not move diagonally.

Each player's goal is to collect the artefact assigned to them and bring it back to the summoning circle in the living room.

- Game board obstacles

- Freak-outs

Scattered around the map are “Freak-out” tiles. When a player crosses over one of these tiles, they must spin the Wheel of Misfortune.

Freak-outs can be detrimental to the team’s progress, so try not to cross over them!

Optional: For a more immersive playthrough, play a 10-hour version of a car alarm or TV static on YouTube if someone triggers one of these freak-out events!

- Creaky floors

Scattered around the map are creaky floorboards. As with the freak-out tiles, if a player crosses over a creaky floor, they trigger it.

Creaky floors make noise. Every creaky floorboard a player crosses adds +2 noise to their character noise bar. (See “Noise bar”.)

- Broken floorboards

Broken floorboards cannot be crossed at any point, except by the Engineering character, as detailed on the character card.

- Noise bar

Each player has their own personal noise bar. This tracks the amount of noise they make whilst moving through the house.

Ghosts are angered by loud noise and will possess a player if their noise bar reaches maximum capacity (20). It is each player’s job to make sure they keep their noise as low as possible by cleansing themselves at the holy-water tiles. (See “Holy water”.)

Beware: some Wheel of Misfortune slices make the noise bars of the whole group go up!

- Possession

As mentioned in the noise bar section, if a player’s noise bar reaches 20, they get possessed. When a player gets possessed, they must move their player piece to the pentagram in the basement.

The ghosts trap possessed players in the basement, stopping them from moving when it is their turn. Instead, possessed players must spin the Wheel of Possession and, if required, must pick a member of the team to receive the punishment; they may not choose themselves.

Players remain possessed until someone from the group brings holy water to them in the basement. (See “Holy water”).

When a player is possessed, their noise bar is emptied to zero and remains at zero until they are exorcized, after which their noise bar will function as normal.

If two players are possessed at the same time, the rest of the players are not allowed to collect their respective artifacts until at least one of the possessed players has been exorcized.

VERY IMPORTANT: The team loses the game when they have 3 or more players possessed at the same time.

- Holy water

The only way for a player to lower their noise is to go to one of the holy-water fonts around the house. When the player lands on one of these tiles, they must roll the D6 to see how much noise gets taken off their noise bar.

As mentioned, holy water is also used to exorcize possessed teammates. When a player is going to the font to collect holy water for this purpose, they do not need to roll the D6. Instead, they must collect one of the holy-water bottles and carry it with them down to the basement.

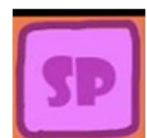

Players can transfer holy-water bottles to another player by landing on the same tile simultaneously.

NOTE: the Theology student does not need holy water to perform an exorcism, as detailed on the character card.

- Secret Passages

On the board, there are two secret passage tiles. Players use this secret passage by landing on one of the tiles and then continuing their turn through the other tile. This means that landing on the two secret passage tiles counts as two moves, as landing on the first tile the passage is one move and moving to the other passage tile is another move.

Players may use either of the tiles as the start of the passage.

- Depositing artifacts

Once players have collected their respective artifacts from the different rooms, they need to deposit the artifacts at the summoning circle in the living room.

Once a player has deposited their artifact there, they can now start moving around the board and fixing creaky floorboards and broken floorboards.

In order to fix these tiles, a player must land on any tile that directly surrounds the tile of choice and gain noise depending on the tile they are trying to fix:

- +3 noise to fix a creaky floorboard
- +4 noise to fix a broken floorboard

Once a tile is fixed, a player can simply scribble out the newly fixed obstacle using a marker.

- Game end

The game ends in one of two ways:

- The team wins the game once every player has collected their artifact and brings it to the summoning circle to rid the house of the demonic entities.

OR

- The team loses the game when 3 or more players are possessed at the same time.
